About the Conference:

The main theme of the conference is ‘Rethinking Humanities: Harmonizing Humanities and Science’.

Humanities and Science have worked hand in hand for the holistic development of the society, we cannot imagine our lives without either. Agriculture, medicine, business, communication, transportation, factories, press etc. have made landmark development in all fields with the help of Humanities and Science. Needless to say, that the scope of Humanities and Science is clubbed in all Home Science specialisations- Textile Science and Apparel Design, Food Science and Nutrition, Human Development, Family Resource Management, Human Ecology and Consumer Services.

Aim of the Conference - The National Education Policy 2020 focuses on the integration of Science and Humanities; therefore, the aim of the Conference is-

To explore the measures required to integrate Science and Humanities in Higher Education.

The objective of this Conference is to deliberate on the lesser-known issues related to both Humanities and Science. Considering the qualities of Humanities which aspires a benevolent society for all its members and Science which is responsible for progress and development of society and mankind. The conference also aims at deliberating the pivotal role played by women in the fields of Humanities and Science.

Expected Outcomes of the Conference - The findings and discussions of the conference can be communicated to the Government and other decision-making bodies. This will enable them to bring in the required changes in Higher Education, so as to integrate Humanities and Science.
